Warrant Denied in Westland Beating Case

Today Wayne County Prosecutor Kym L. Worthy determined that no charges would issue against three men arrested in connection with an altercation with a military veteran that occurred on March 2, 2014, at 1:30 a.m. in the 100 block of Venoy in the City of Westland. After a review of the facts and evidence it has been determined that the complaining witness in the case was the initial aggressor and was consistently the aggressor throughout the incident. The three men will not be charged with a crime.

Statement of Prosecutor Worthy

"The alleged facts in this case that are credible and supported by evidence in no way support a charge of any kind in this case. The complaining witness is a military veteran who was the initial aggressor in a fight with three men. The complainant was the largest man and he began the fight by striking the smallest of the three men. After being hit, the smallest man fled the scene. A fight continued with the complainant and the other two men. This is where this whole scenario should have ended, since the two men fled the scene. The complainant then continued to pursue them for over a half mile on foot while the two men tried to hide from him. When the complainant found the men, he started the fight all over again. During the altercation the complainant sustained some injuries consistent with a fist fight, but was treated at a hospital and was released. Since the veteran was the initial and only aggressor, the actions of the other three men are not a crime and we are declining to issue any charges.

"You cannot, in this state, start a fight, and when others disengage, track the people down to continue the fight and then claim that you were the victim," said Prosecutor Worthy.

“As in all cases with multiple defendants we must evaluate each person’s actions individually to assess their alleged criminal conduct. In the case of the 16-year-old charged as a juvenile, we can prove beyond a reasonable doubt, the crimes of Assault with Intent to Do Great Bodily Harm and Ethnic Intimidation. In the case of the four adult defendants that have been charged, the facts and the evidence does not support a charge of Ethnic Intimidation. We know there were numerous people involved in this case and the police are continuing to investigate, so I will not comment any further about the case,” said Prosecutor Worthy.
