INVOCATION

Chair Bell called upon Commissioner Baker McCormick, who introduced Reverend Dr. Theodore Turman of First Baptist Church of Detroit, who gave the following invocation:

“Dear God, our Creator, our Redeemer and our Sustainer, we pause for a moment to give you thanks. We thank you, oh God, for the privilege of this day, and for the timely reminder that storms will come, but they will pass. We thank you for the reminder that while the thunder may roar, the sun will, and eventually, shine again. We thank you for this gathering and for these, your public servants, those who have heeded the call to serve your people. We thank you for their sacrifices, for their skills, and we pray, Lord, your blessings on their time of service, that you would endow them with the necessary tools to lead effectively, to lead collaboratively, to lead not just and only for the most good, but even for the marginalized in our county. We pray that they would have ears to hear, that they would have eyes to see, that they would have hearts to feel, and that they would have hands to do the work to which they have been called. Bless them, and bless us, as their partners in service. May we continue to see our county flourish because of the work of our hands. Bless our time together today in Jesus’ name, Amen.”
